BIG SHIP OVER HERE FRIDAY

NO DEFINITE HOUR FOR FLIGHT OVER CITY.

LEAVES PORT TODAY

To Pass Over Maryville On Way To St. Joseph To Des Moines, According To Information.

The navy dirigible Shenandoah will pass over Maryville, probably Friday, according to dispatches from Washington. The hour of the big airship's appearance here cannot now be stated, navy department officials explaining that it would depend upon the time of her arrival at Scott Field near St. Louis and the time required for refueling at that point.

According to today's St. Joseph Gazette, the Shenandoah will fly over that city between 3 and 4 o'clock Friday afternoon if it leaves Scott Field, Belleville, Ill., at 7 o'clock in the morning. If it leaves earlier than that, of course, it will arrive earlier in the afternoon.

The Shenandoah will not land at any point in this part of the country after leaving St. Louis.

From Kansas City the airship will sail over St. Joseph, Des Moines, Minneapolis and thence to Detroit, where she will make a landing. The dirigible will pass over Maryville on its way from St. Joseph to Des Moines, according to the latest information received here from Congressman Charles L. Faust.

The navy department announced a table covering the trip of the Shenandoah, giving the approximate elapsed time required for the inter-city flights. It is assumed the airship will make thirty miles an hour until arrival at Scott Field. While it is impossible to give a time schedule showing just when she will pass over each city, the table of elapsed time or the time required for flight from one city to another gives each community an idea of the general progress of the airship and a basis to furnish information as to time of arrival when the time of departure from the preceding city is known.

Kansas City Farthest West.

The airship will leave Lakehurst, N. J., at 4 o'clock this afternoon. She will proceed no further west than Kansas City, as at that point she will head north. The table prepared by the navy department sets forth the route as well as the elapsed time.

The Schedule.

The route follows:

One hour 30 minutes from Lakehurst to Philadelphia; 9 hours 50 minutes from Philadelphia to Wheeling, W. Va.; 2 hours 20 minutes to Zanesville, O.; 1 hour 50 minutes to Columbus, O.; 2 hours to Dayton, O.; 3 hours 45 minutes to Indianapolis; 2 hours to Layfaette, Ind; 5 hours to Springfield, Ill.; 3 hours to Scott Field, Ill.

Leave Scott Field as early as possible September 4, 30 minutes from there to St. Louis; 6 hours 50 minutes to Kansas City; 1 hour 20 minutes to St. Joseph; 4 hours 10 minutes to Des Moines, Ia.; 1 hour to Boone, Ia.; 1 hour to Webster City, Ia; 5 hours 15 minutes to Minneapolis and St. Paul; 2 hours to Menominee, Wis.; 40 minutes to Ean Claire, Wis.; 1 hour 30 minutes to Black River Falls, Wis., 2 hours 30 minutes to Wautoma, Wis.; 1 hour 20 minutes to Oshkosh, Wis.; 30 minutes to Fond Du Lac, Wis.; 1 hour 50 minutes to Milwaukee; 50 minutes to Racine, Wis.; 3 hours 50 minutes to Kalamazoo, Mich.; 40 minutes to Battle Creek, Mich.; 1 hour 10 minutes to Jackson, Mich.; 1 hour to Ann Arbor, Mich.; 1 hour to Detroit.

Leaving Detroit 1 hour 25 minutes to Flint; 1 hour 10 minutes to Bay City; 30 minutes to Saginaw; 55 minutes to Owosso; 45 minutes to Lansing.

On the asumption that the Shenandoah again will return over Detroit, the schedule for the remainder of the flight follows:

One hour 35 minutes from Detroit to Toledo; 1 hour 25 minutes to Sandusky, O.; 1 hour and 35 minutes to Cleveland; 1 hour to Akron; 1 hour 20 minutes to Youngstown, O.; 3 hours 30 minutes to Clearfield, Pa.; 2 hours 15 minutes to Lewisburg, Pa.; 2 hours 10 minutes to Reading, Pa.; 2 hours 45 minutes to Lakehurst, N. J.

PROFIT $140 ON FERTILIZER

POTATOES YIELD 186 BU. FROM ACID PHOSPHATE.

ON D. O. BELT FARM

75.7 More Bushels to Acre Than From Unfertilized Land and Home Grown Seed Used.

Application of acid phosphate fertilizer and use of northern grown potatoes for seed yielded 75.7 more bushels to the acre than where home grown potato seed were grown on unfertilized land, in an experiment conducted on the farm of D. O. Belt, south of Maryville in conjunction with the Extension Service of the College of Agriculture.

This spring before planting time Mr. Belt tried to secure certified northern seed but was unsuccessful, so was forced to use uncertified seed. In tabulating the results of thirty-five potato demonstrations conducted in fourteen counties of Missouri last year the use of certified seed of northern variety gave an increase of fifty-nine bushels to the acre over the use of uncertified seed.

Considering these results as fairly indicative, if Mr. Belt could have used certified seed of northern grown potatoes and used acid phosphate on his land, he could have easily doubled his yield over using home grown seed and no fertilizer, or to state in figures, an increase of 134.7 bushels. And with potatoes selling about $2 a bushel he would have received $269.40 more per acre.

As the experiment was run on his farm this summer with uncertified northern grown Irish potato seed, on land fertilized with acid phosphate, applied at the rate of 600 pounds an acre, his land yielded 186.8 bushels an acre.

Potatoes planted by the side of these without acid phosphate yielded 127.8 bushels per acre, a difference of fifty-nine bushels per acre in favor of the land where the phosphate fertilizer used. Mr. Belt also compared home grown seed with northern grown seed. The fertilized home grown seed gave a yield of 157.3 bushels per acre as compared to the 186.8 bushels per acre for the northern grown fertilized seed. Land unfertilized on which home grown seed was used yielded only 111.1

$6,000 MORE IN TREASURY

INCREASE CITY BALANCE OVER LAST YEAR.

EXPENSES ARE LARGER

Routine Business Conducted by Council at Regular Monthly Meeting Last Night.

The balance in the city treasury was approximately $6,000 larger yesterday than at the same time a year ago, according to the report of the Mayor, W. O. Garrett, that was made at the regular council meeting held last night His report shows that on September 1, this year there was a total of $58,278.92, which is considered good in view of the fact that the expenses this summer have been increased due to the paving going on this year and expansion in the water department.

Mayor Garrett's report shows $28,665.86 as compared to $27,225.35 a month ago. The balances in the other funds are: street fund, $2,280.93; library fund, $3,003.92; general fund, $12,155.37; first water bond principal, $4,272.58; first water bond interest, $1,861.19; street workers guarantee, $301; stret lighting, $3,369.14; second water bond principal, $629.83; second water bond interest, $1,704.23; petty cash, $34.87.

The report of the police judge, Warren L. Johnson, revealed fourteen cases tried by him during August, with a fine of $5 assessed in each case. Six were fined for speeding; one for keeping dog without getting city tax, two on drunkenness charge; one for careless operation of motor vehicle; three for unlawful operation of motor vehicle, and one operating a motor vehicle without a city license.

There were 1,663 books and magazines lent in the Maryville Library, according to the report of Miss Grace Langan, librarian, 376 in juvenile department, 1,194 of general nature and ninety-three magazines, or an average of 104 a day. Thirteen readers' cards were issued, 870 used the reading rooms during the month, an average of twenty-nine a day and collections totaled $16.92.

Dry Cleaning Co., Is Entered and Robbed

Between $75 and $80 was rifled from the safe and cash register during the early morning hours from the Superior Dry Cleaning establishment on North Main street by unknown persons.

The robbery was not discovered until this morning when the owners, Sam and John Bithos, opened the shop. Police were summoned but no evidence was found to lead to any arrests.

The robber was evidently well acquainted with the Dry Cleaning Shop, gaining entrance by a coal shute on the south side of the building and forced an entrance through a trap door in the floor by breaking one of the boards, and avoiding various articles in the basement and on the stairs.

It is claimed by the owners that they locked the safe last night before closing up, but the safe showed that it was not forced, and conclusion is brought that either the safe was left unlocked or the robber knew the combination. A small amount of small change was taken from the cash register and currency and checks stolen from the safe, kept in a money bag.

Board Hearing Held Up By Controversy

Question As To Whether Newspaper Men Shall Be Admitted At Purdy Meeting.

Purdy, Mo., Sept. 2.—Taking a deposition in the state board of health case to revoke the medical license of Dr. R. B. Horton was delayed a week by a dispute over the question of admitting newspaper men to the hearing.

Dr. Horton's license was granted him in 1922. Around his case was hinged the heated controversy among members of the board to have Dr. Cortez Enloe, former secretary, removed from the board.

Dr. Emmett North and Dr. James Stewart charged that numerous men who were incompetent as physicians were given license through the assistance of Dr. Enloe, and they are trying to have him ousted.

COOLIDGE MAY GET TAX BACK

COURT DECLARES HIS SALARY IS EXEMPT.

HE HAS NOT ASK IT

Supreme Court Judges and Presidents Salaries Not Taxable— Paid $14,091.

Swampscott, Sept. 2.—If he wants to go after it, President Coolidge can get back from the United States treasury most of the $14,091 income tax which he paid this year, tax experts believed today.

Presidents and federal judges have been paying income taxes since 1919 when Congress inserted a provision specifically taxing their salaries. This provision has been held unconstitutional and President Coolidge, the estates of Presidents Harding and Wilson and the federal judges can recover the money they have paid.

Mr. Coolidge filed his tax returns last March, a few weeks before the decision was handed down, and his salary apparently made up most of his taxable income.

As far as is known, the President has not made a request for a rebate, or even for a treasury regulation specifically exempting his salary in the future under the Supreme Court ruling.

Washington, Sept. 2.—Publication of federal income tax returns has been without value either to the government or the people of the country, high treasury officials declared today. The amount of tax paid does not indicate the income of the individual, officials said. Many persons generally reputed to have tremendous incomes paid relatively small taxes, probably indicating that their wealth was concentrated in tax-exempt securities, it was pointed out.

U. S. NAVAL AIRPLANE SOMEWHERE IN PACIFIC.

OFFICERS STILL HOPES

Admiral Moffatt Is Most Optimistic Of Any At Headquarters—Radio Operators Are Busy.

San Francisco, Sept. 2.—At 11:50 o'clock, Pacific time, this morning naval headquarters here announced no trace of the missing plane No. 1 had been found.

The announcement was based on a report received from the fourteenth naval district headquarters in Honolulu.

"One thing to consider," Admiral Moffat said, "it that the PN-9 No. 1 was almost light when she landed. This would have enabled Rodgers to make a favorable landing, even in rough sea. I am certain this flight will not cost the navy a single life."

And as he said this, the distinguished white-haired officer knocked on wood.

San Francisco, Sept. 2.—Only the silence which may mean death came into radio phones here today as dawn broke over the Golden Gate to find weary-eyed men listening at every radio station for the buzz of continental code which will tell of the fate of the plane PN-9 No. 1, missing somewhere out in the Pacific.

Only a faint ray of hope for a quick end of the search was given in last reports.

"Too rought to send out a scouting plane," the guard boats messaged back curtly.

A. R. Only 9,000 veterans actually will march, the others will ride in automobiles. Ambulances will be parked along the streets if yesterday's weather continues.

STEWART'S WASHINGTON LETTER

By Charles P. Stewart
NEA Service Writer.

Washington—Increasing German competition in the export trade field is beginning to make Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce officials look rather the ghtful.

As "The Index," organ of the New York Trust Company, says: "German industries have secured splendid new equipment as a result of building done during the decline and fall of the mark.

"They are now, almost without exception, equipped with the latest machinery, in a position to take advantage of the latest and most improved processes, and are in all respects probably the most modern in the world; and German rivalry will be intense."

The commerce bureau looks for German activity particularly in the orient and Latin America. That post-war Germany will be financially able to extend the extremely long credits of antebellum days is regarded as doubtful, which may handicap her somewhat.

Still, her production costs are low, so that she can make favorable prices even if she cannot give her customers quite so much time in which to pay them as formerly.

She excels also in adapting her goods to her trade's requirements instead of trying to educate her markets into a liking for what her own people happen to prefer— the Anglo-Saxon and especially the American system.

In China, Germany, potentially is in a stronger position and far more popular than before the war—probably, of all foreign nationalities, the best liked there. While her business methods were good, politically her pre-war attitude was one of arrogance and it cost her friends.

Beaten, she has grown polite. Except Russia, whose commercial rivalry she has no need to fear, she, of all the world powers, is without either territorial possessions or extraterritorial rights at the expense of the Chinese. Both were included among her war losses, which of course she didn't like at the time, but is discovering now to have been blessings in disguise.

The Hopkins baseball nine defeated the Bedford, Ia., team yesterday at Hopkins in one of the games of the baseball tournament that is being held there. Hopkins won by score of 6 to 2. Gentry defeated the Yorktown, Ia., team in a one-sided affair 10 to 2.

Hopkins and Gentry play this afternoon and Yorktown and Bedford play in the consolations. It is understood that these teams have some high salaried pitchers that have been imported for the tournament.

Approves Plan for Constitution Day

Governor Baker Approves Program For Observance Sept. 17.—Executive Issues Statement.

Jefferson City, Sept. 2.—Gov. Sam A. Baker in a statement approved the plan for observing Constitution day September 17 and urged all schools to hold exercises commemorating the occasion.

The governor's statement:

"I am glad to join with the American Bar Association and other organizations interested in good citizenship in helping to make the observance of Constitution day, September 17, a decided success.

"The constitution of the United States is the supreme law of the land and obedience to the laws of state and nation is one of the requisites of good citizenship. Knowledge of law is an aid to its observance. It is therefore of great importance that the study of the constitution should be part of the curriculum in every school. Some phases of it can be taught even in the primary grades.

"Thomas Jefferson once said the constitution was for the living and not for the dead. James M. Beck has said that the high altar of the constitution is the self restraint which the American people of 1787 were wise enough to impose upon themselves and their posterity. I trust therefore, that every schoolroom and every civic organization in the state of Missouri will observe the 17th day of September with appropriate exercises in commemoration of the adoption of our federal constitution.

"Every day in the year should be constitution day but let us make the 17th of September a revival of interest in this great yet simple document concerning which someone has asid that the snows of Mt. Washington are not purer than the motives which begat it, the fresh dew laden zephyr from the orange groves of the Sunny South are not sweeter than the sentiment which inspired it."

(Shenandoah Sentinel-World)

Five caddies from Maryville, under a fifteen days suspension there for violating rules laid down by the caddy master, have been seeing the sights in Shenandoah the last few days.

They arrived Sunday morning expecting to find the Iowa-Missouri Golf association tournament in progresss here. The boys were given caddy jobs that day by the golfers who heard their stories. At night they attempted to sleep on the porch at the club house but made tender bait for the mosquitoes. Downtown friends helped them to rations Monday and "Spec" (Whizz-Bang) and his friends caught an afternoon bus to Clarinda where they "knew nearly everybody" and where they expected to add enough to their treasury to get home.

Caddies at the local country club are as scarce as hen's teeth but these fellows were sharp enought to get bags to carry. Likewise they were well posted on what club to use and were of material aid as well as ornamental. "Spec," the most picturesque one looked like a Saturday Evening Post Cover, long pants and all.

Maryville Now Can Boast of But One Horseshoer

The heyday of the leather-clad blacksmith, daily engaged in shoeing horses, is rapidly passing into history and future generations will probably have only Longfellow's immortal tribute to this man of toil as their only bit of colorful knowledge of this once prosperous labor.

Maryville, a city of some 5,000 persons and in the center of Missouri's most prosperous agricultural country, now can boast of only one horseshoer to take care of its sturdy steeds. A decade or so ago, there were a dozen horseshoers at work in Maryville and the schoolboy would look with envy at the smithy's steel-like muscles as he skillfully clad old Dobbin with a new pair of shiny shoes. This same school boy of the past often resolved to be a horseshoer when he grew into manhood and the sparks from the anvil, flying thick and fast, would kindle this ambition into kiddish pranks in many a barn and workshop where a piece of iron was available.

J. E. Stark is the sole survivor of the Maryville horseshoers, and he said this morning that it may only be a matter of a short time until he discontinues this sort of work.

Mr. Stark blames the automobile, tractors and trucks for the passing of the horseshoer. He said this morning that very few farmers in Nodaway County are having their horses shod as formerly. Shoes are not necessary as long as the horses do work on the farms, Mr. Stark said, and the few that make the trips to town are very seldom brought to the blacksmith shop.

A few riding horses in the community are still equipped with shoes as before but this does not furnish a great amount of work for the smithy.

The price for shoes remains about the same, Mr. Stark said, and because of the increased cost of labor, coal, nails, etc., the regular horseshoer can not make much for his work.

However, Mr. Stark looks for a revival in horseshoeing on account of the hardsurfaced roads, but this increase will not be to any marked degree, he said this morning. It is only a question of time when Maryville will be without a horseshoer.

Ben Colvin of Miles City, Mont., spent last week end with Mr. and Mrs. Platt Colvin of Elmo. He had accompanied a shipment of cattle to St. Paul, Minn. Another shipment of nine car loads followed to Omaha from his 28,000-acre ranch near Miles City. He is a cousin of the Colvins, also the Pecks of Westboro.

Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Colvin and daughters, Margaret Belle and Elaine, of Greeley, Colo., arrived in Elmo Friday evening to visit their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Platt Colvin. They left Monday morning for Kirksville to visit Mrs. Colvin's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Pinkston, a few days. They will stop on the way back for a longer visit in Elmo. The visitors made the trip by automobile, leaving Greeley at 1 o'clock Thursday afternoon and arriving in Elmo at 5:30 p. m. the following day.

Mr. and Mrs. William Bucker and son, Platt, of Gaynor visited Mrs. Bucker's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Platt Colvin of Elmo, over Sunday.

E. F. Daniels to Harlan, Ia.

Ernest F. Daniels will leave the last of the week for Harlan, Ia., where he will take a position as manual training insturctor in the high school. Mrs. Daniels will join him there later. Mr Daniels held a similar position in Liberty, Mo., schools for five years. He taught in the industrial arts department of the local State Teachers College this year and received his B. S. degree in education at the close of the spring semester.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Stapler went to Des Moines, Ia., for a week's visit with the latter's sister, Mrs. Lewis Diss, and Mr. Diss.

Just Reasonably Honest

By JACK WOODFORD

(©, 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

PRESIDENT CHAMBERS of the Acme Sales corporation looked up in patent irritation as his secretary entered and announced an unknown caller.

"He says his name is Frank Stevens, sir," announced the secretary, "and that the matter about which he wishes to see you is of the utmost importance."

"'Of the utmost importance'—to him—no doubt," grumbled the president. "Tell him that we're all filled up and not hiring a soul for any department."

The youth gulped, and, taking a handkerchief from his pocket, wiped the perspiration from his face.

"Go back and tell your boss that I do not wish to ask him for employment; I must see him on a matter that is important to him."

The secretary presently emerged to crook his finger at the determined young man.

"Well?" snapped Chambers irritably; and when the young man did not vouchsafe a reply, "sit down, sit down! State your business and be quick about it," grumbled Chambers.

Leaning over suddenly the youth shot his words at the older man as though they were bullets.

"Sir, I love your daughter; I've come to ask you for her hand in marriage." Chambers glared ferociously at the petitioner.

"Did she send you to me?"

"Heavens, no!" declaimed the youth; "in fact, she warned me that if I ever came to you you would in all probability throw me out on my neck; nevertheless, I love her, and I'm going to marry her, with or without your consent."

"I suppose," the executive remarked sarcastically, "that you are the champion long-distance tea-drinker of Manhattan; or perhaps you are the thirty-second cousin of an insolvent duke; my dear daughter seems to have a penchant for surrounding herself with men whom I wouldn't allow to sweep out my office."

"Indeed," smiled Frank; "well, you're wide of your mark this time. I am one of the variety described in novels as 'poor but honest,' that is, reasonably honest, of course. At present I am unemployed; in a rash moment I thrashed my last employer within an inch of his life when I came upon him forcing his attentions on his stenographer. So, you see, I am not only out of a job but out of references."

"Quite fortunate," remarked Chambers sarcastically, "that my daughter should have taken a fancy to you right at this time—it would clarify your position greatly, would it not, to marry an heiress at present?"

"Look here!" almost shouted the youth, rising and towering over the president, "what do you take me for? I'm not looking for help from anyone; if I marry your daughter you can cut her off with a dime for all I care. I'm man enough to see that she behaves herself and lives on whatever income I provide for her."

"Well, I must admit," drawled the president, "that you're the nearest thing to a real he-man that I ever saw her take up with. Tell you what I'll do: You say you are a salesman; all right, I'll give you the toughest territory I've got. You go out into it and see if you can make good. If you can really deliver the goods, I may—mind you, I say I may—give my consent to the match; but I'm going to watch you very closely—don't forget that!"

"Fine," agreed the youth. "I'll give you my word of honor not to see your daughter again until I've made good, in your estimation; and if I never make good, I'll promise to never see your daughter again."

In six months Frank Stevens was back in the ornate office; this time with no signs of diffidence or trepidation. Chambers rose to stride half way across the floor and shake hands.

"By George! Frankie, you're a whirlwind! The sales manager tells me you've turned in more business from that usually worthless territory than our star salesman has turned in from southern Illinois! You can have your pick of anything on this chart now." He indicated a map, stuck with sundry colored pins, representing the potentialities of the Acme Sales corporation. "Furthermore, I want you to come right out to the house tonight for dinner—you have my full permission to marry my frivolous daughter." Frank Stevens hung his head.

"Mr. Chambers, I've got an admission to make. I never met your daughter in my life. I was desperate for a job the day I came here. I really did whip my boss for insulting his stenographer—I was afraid I'd have an awful time getting another job. You see, I married the stenographer, and I had to have work. On the spur of the moment, when your secretary told me you were not hiring anyone, I thought of the subterfuge of pretending that I was a suitor for your daughter's hand— I hope you'll forgive me—I'll work like the devil for you if you'll overlook that rather underhanded bit of stratagem, and take me on record for the last six months." Mr. Chambers chuckled and placed his arm about the boy's shoulder.

"My boy, I haven't any daughter. I've got a couple of rah-rah boy sons—I wish to goodness they had one-tenth of your wit and spunk between them. Forgive you? Well, I should hope so—I got more fun out of it than you did."

Hot, Dry Sunshiny Weather Last Week

Columbia, Sept. 1.—In Missouri the week ending Tuesday morning, September 1, was characterized by hot, dry, sunshiny weather. The excess in warmth over the seasonal normal was about 6 degrees a day. Afternoon temperatures ranged into the high 90's, reached and exceeded the 100 degree value on a few days; 107 at Popular Bluff was the highest reported. Sunshine was 96 per cent of the possible. Local showers in the Ozarks from about Wright to Iron County Monday afternoon was the only rain during the week.

The weather was favorable for corn in much the greater portion of Missouri north of the Ozarks, although it was to hot and dry for a relatively small per cent of late planted uplands. The subsoil moisture from the good rains up to about the twentieth of August is carrying the bulk of the corn to normal maturity. In contrast to last year it shows earlier development. Cutting has begun in scattered fields as far north as Buchanan County.

It has been too dry for most corn outside of the bottom lands in the southwestern counties having Henry Benton Hickory as the center; and the late planted in the southern third of the state from the west to the east border has suffered severely; much of the crop is said to be "burning up" and ripening prematurely.

Pastures, forage, and truck crops are nearly a failure in the dry sections; and stock water is low in localities. The commercial tomato crop in Greene and Barry Counties is beginning to suffer. Apples on the other hand are maturing satisfactorily and are of good quality; picking has begun.

Cotton on some uplands and light soils was adversely affected by the hot, dry weather, and is beginning to wilt and shed. The main crop is doing quite well; bolls opening rapidly and picking well along.

SEES BOOST FOR THE FARMER

Farm Economist Is Encouraged By World Outlook.

Definite provision for the payment of Europe's war debt to the United States is likely, in the long run, to bring farming in this country back to an equal footing with industry in the purchasing power of its dollar, says S. D. Gromer, acting head of the rural life department at the Missouri College of Agriculture.

The war debts due us from certain European countries are now on the point of being taken up for adjustment, says Mr. Gromer. Last year we had a formidable balance of trade of more than a billion dollars in our favor. More or less the amount of this balance was loaned by private parties to foreign governments and to individuals. It is a truism in political economy that exports, whether of goods or service, must in the long run be paid for by goods or service, that is, by imports. For otherwise the stability of a country's currency cannot be maintained and her budget balanced. If these conclusions are correct the debts owed by foreigners to this country must be paid in goods or services. The results would seem to bring about a reversal of the situation as regards the purchasing power of agricultural products compared with those of industry which prevailed immediately following the war.

At that time the two greatest manufacturing regions in the world: Western Europe and Eastern America, did not seem to be producing to capacity. Europe's industrial capacity to produce was much crippled during the war. Industrial America seems in many cases to have purposely limited production to maintain prices. Agricultural Europe recovered more quickly than Industrial Europe. Anyway the farmer, in general, has a much longer turnover than business, and consequently cannot control production so quickly. The result was that Agricultural America and Europe produced, compared to pre-war, more than Industrial America and Europe. The result was a lower purchasing power on the part of the farmer as regards the industrial products. This situation augmented by the monetary situation brought about the greatest deflation in agricultural prices known to this generation. The farmer is not yet quite on a purchasing equality with industry.

The conditions discussed above relative to Europe's owing us such vast sums may very likely work out in the long run in helping to bring back the equality just spoken of through competition with our home manufacturers.

Due to a rapid increase of our industrial population and the fact that the fertility of a considerable part of our land is being depleted and there is not much room for more expansion on good soil, the conditions seem favorable, on the whole, to still further aid the farmer's dollar to buy a full dollar's worth of industrial products.

With all the confusion, misunderstanding and general lack of information on the subject of tire buying, one might think Abraham Lincoln coined his famous phrase after an experience in tire buying.

The truth of what he said as applied to tires is best summed up today in this statement of fact:

MORE PEOPLE RIDE ON GOODYEAR TIRES THAN ON ANY OTHER KIND.

Of course, there is a real reason.

Arch Edwards Tells of Trying To Shine Pair of Rubber Boots for Jake Eberhart

The following interesting letter from R. J. (Arch) Edwards, a former resident of Maryville, has been received by Capt. Charles Hyslop:

Aug. 31, 1925.

Capt. Charles Hyslop,
Maryville. Mo.
Dear Mr. Hyslop:—

I close my eyes this morning and sit in retrospection contemplating scenes and incidents in the panoramic view of the days when I was a boy on the streets of Maryville, and you with your flowing beard, tall, straight as an arrow, shoulders back, elastic step, regular military bearing, passing down the street along the north side of the old court house in conversation with me toddling along at your side. I can see you now as then, although I have another picture of you after you had shaved your beard off. Whether you sprouted it again or not I do not know as I have not seen you for lo, almost forty years, but I shall never forget your jovial optimistic disposition and nature and that tall erect figure with shoulders thrown back in regular military style. This always occurs to me whenever I think of you.

I was indeed glad to get your letter of the 17th on my return from a hurried trip to St. Louis, Chicago, Grand Rapids, Minneapolis, Des Moines, Kansas City and home and have read with pleasure, as have my mother, Mayme and Ed. All of us rejoice that you are still among those living and apparently in good health and full of pep as indicated by your accompanying notice of sale.

Speaking of rubber boots reminds me of Jake Eberhart, who, when I was a boy shining shoes on the sly against my father's wishes, one day hailed me on the street and took me into Bob Shelton's restaurant. He had just come to town to ship a lot of hogs. The time was March, the weather cold and his boots were muddy and he tackled me to shine his boots, which were rubber. Of course, I was new at the business and unacquainted with the impossibility of shining rubber shoes or boots. I am sure he knew this, as did the wiley Bob Shelton, so he offered me a dime, or twice the regular price of a nickle for a shine. I can recall that I was all bundled up with big red woolen nubia, or scarf, around my neck. Jake sat down in a chair right close to a big red hot stove and Uncle Bob proceeded to poke up and fill full of coal. I got out my kit, cleaned off the boots, daubed over the blacking and started the job. The trouble of it was that as fast as I would run the polishing brushes over I would rub the blacking off and no shine resulted. I worked and fussed and sweat, finally I pulled off my scarf, or nubia, finally my coat and kept at it with that determination, which always characterized me on a job. I worked along until I happened to glance up and saw Uncle Bob's face wreathed in smiles and a merry wink passed to Uncle Jake, whereupon I immediately reilized that a job had been put up on me. I don't kniw whether you recall that in those days I was a notorious cusser. I was filled with all the slang and billingsgate that there was available in the vocabulary. My indignation knew no bounds. I jumped up and put on my coat, tied the scarf around my neck, jerked my box out from Uncle Jake's feet and started to cuss him and Uncle Bob and everybody else and went out the front door and slammed it with a bang that almost broke the glass. They and all the bystanders let out in uproaring laughter. They had certainly put it over me. I remember Uncle Jake later met me on the street and gave me my dime and twitted me about it. Of course, I had cooled off and realized that it was all my own fault and we were none the less friends; in fact, I cherished the friendship of both of these men always and their memories are just as green as other ones of that dear old crowd of Maryville of my father and mother and myself.

You do not know Captain Hyslop how much I appreciate your letter and how much I appreciate the memory of you and all those who lived in that good old day. The farther I go along life's highway, the higher up in the now too rapidly mounting years of time, the memories of my boyhood days around old Maryville and its people grow and become endeared to me. Every inch of its ground is sacred soil, every face, figure, incident and event sacred and precious to me. Of course, I have my adopted home, my chosen field and my family all associated with my present adopted country so that I will never return as a resident or a part of the life of Maryville, but I shall always cherish it in my memories.

Mother had a letter from Ira K. Alderman and I think has written him. She is well up in the eighties. Her mental faculties are as bright as ever and the only infirmity is in her walk. She has a good appetite and sleeps well and is really in good health considering her advanced years. Ed is prosperous in business here and he and my sister Mayme and mother all live together just across the alley from me. I have six children that make their home there as much as at home, so we are all practically living as one big family. My six children are all with us now, two are home from Harvard, one from Princeton and one from Bryn Mawr, but they will all leave in about ten days, leaving us just the two little ones who will also soon be on the way as the others.

We have a lot of old Maryville people here whom I frequently meet and exchange notes on Maryville and our former friends. Pete Duffy, son of B. P. Duffy, of the old "Pot House Four" is associated with me here, and Uncle George Snapp is a resident close by. I saw Charlie Ditmar on the street the other day and had a long talk with him about his family. He is in splendid health, considering his age. All over the state I find old Maryvillians and I am always glad to see them. Bird McMackin, who married Nick Bilby, lives at Holdenville, is a frequent visitor in our city and at Mother's home. I had a letter from Harry Case, now living in Portland, Ore., in response to my letter which was published in the paper. He spoke of a great many Maryvillians. I do not have the letter now or I would enclose it. I usually send them around among some of my old friends whom I know are interested.

One of these days I am going to take time to look in on Maryville. I want you to know that any time I would be glad to hear from you. As you know and say, I am busy, so to write you as I would like in my own handwriting is impossible for want of time, consequently I hope you will pardon this dictation. My heart goes with it just the same as though my hand made the imprint of the thought.

Remember me to all of my friends, especially the older ones mentioned in your letter and to any others of those whom you might meet.

With affectionate regards to you always, I am

Sincerely yours,
Signed: Arch (R. J.) Edwards.

HARMONY

Church Notes.

Not a very large number attended the service Sunday morning though a good interest was shown. The pastor being absent at Conference there was no preaching service night or morning, but at the evening hour there was a program sponsored by the C. E. At this meeting Miss Mildred Fanning and Miss Ogle McKee who were delegates to the recent young peoples conference at Farrar, Iowa made very interesting reports of that meeting. Other features of the evening service were songs and instrumental solo by Orville Underwood

The Ladies Aid Society will meet at the church Wednesday afternoon by the call of the President, Mrs. B. K. Lewis.

Rev. Underwood left for Farrar, Iowa, Tuesday morning of last week to attend the Young Peoples Conference that was held just previous to the convening of the Annual Conference at that place. He was accompanied by Miss Mildred Fanning and Miss Ogle McKee, who were sent as delegates from this local society of young people. The young ladies returned Friday afternoon and report a very successful meeting.

R. V. McKee left on Friday morning's C. G. W. Passenger train from Parnell to attend the Conference at Farrar. He returned early Sunday morning in company with Rev. Underwood who was called home by the sudden and serious illness of Mrs. Underwood. Mrs. Underwood is suffering from a recurrence of a former illness last spring from which it was hoped she had entirely recovered. Her condition is but slightly improved at the present time.

A conference of the Sunday School workers of this sub-district will be held at the Harmony church Sunday afternoon September 6. The program will appear later. Mr. Needles, District President, will preside at this meeting.

School Notes.

As before announced school opened in all departments, August 31. The first day's enrollment at the High School was 29. A very commendable interest was shown by the pupils in general. Practice will begin on both tennis courts and the Basket Ball at once.

One of the features of this school year will be the work in music; instruction will be given individually and in orchestra once a week, throughout the term.

Halley Ford will attend a meeting of the coaches of the high schools of Nodaway County in the office of Superintendent Somerville Saturday.

All of our teachers attended the County Association of teachers last Wednesday and Thursday.

Personals.

Miss Gladys Horten was visiting friends in this neighborhood last Sunday. She will teach Latin and English in the High School at Genoa, Neb., next year.

Quite a little excitement over in the southwest corner of peaceful settlement last Saturday. It settled the fact that Frank Griffey is the champion foot racer of that neighborhood.

E. E. Saunders and family visited friends in Pickering last Sunday.

M. A. Brown has vastly improved the appearance of things around his place by painting his fine farm residence and the erection of a handsome yard fence.

GOOD DISPOSITIONS INVALUABLE

You can't watch your disposition too carefully. A crab and a grouch are rarely successful. If your liver and stomach are in an unhealthy condition you can not have a sunny disposition because they affect the brain as well as the entire system. Mayr's Wonderful Remedy has been usually successful in such cases. Our advice to everyone troubled in this way, especially when accompanied with bloating in the stomach, is to try this remedy. It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. Closing Grain Review.

Chicago, Sept. 2.—Grains finished irregular on the Board of Trade today. Wheat sold at a substantial decrease, corn was sharply higher and oats were steady.

What fluctuated erratically. Prices broke sharply at the start, rallied around midday, and then dropped to new low levels on the movement. Short covering toward the last recovered some of the losses.

The continued warm weather and increasing reports of damage to growing grain boosted corn.

Most operations in oats were of a changing nature with a narrow range.

A decrease in lard stocks and the consequent covering boosted provisions.

PLANS TAX ON AMUSEMENTS

BAKER PROPOSES AMENDMENT TO PROVIDE FUND FOR EDUCATION.

MAY BE PUT TO VOTE

Levy Would Hit Football, Basketball, Baseball Games, Theaters, and Other Amusements.

Jefferson City, Sept. 2.—Complete support of the Missouri public school system and the higher educational system of the state from revenue derived solely from a state tax on amusements and luxuries is now being considered by Governor Baker in connection with his plan to submit a constitutional amendment to the voters at the next general election in November, 1926, providing for an exclusive fund for education in the state. This was learned from the chief executive late today.

Governor Baker conceived the idea of operating the state schools and higher educational institutions, such as the University of Missouri, the five state teachers' colleges, Lincoln university (state negro college), the Missouri school for the deaf at Fulton and the state blind school, by a separate tax levy, shortly after the adjournment of the legislature last April. His original plan contemplated a two-mill separate state tax levy on property for this purpose. The law was taken under consideration by the governor after he had to make heavy reductions in apropriations made by the last legislature for the various educational institutions.

Big Returns Figured.

The new plan, learned of today, would derive the revenue from amusement and luxury taxes. Governor Baker said he had been making preliminary surveys and had found that a small percentage on amusements and luxuries would yield "big returns" to the state for the educational system support plan.

A probable 5 or 10 per cent state tax on baseball, motion picture shows and other theatrical amusements, together with a probable state tax on cigarets, cigars, and various other luxuries is being considered by the governor for inclusion in his proposal to the people.

The chief executive said he had made a survey of receipts from base ball games in Missouri staged by the three major teams, the St. Louis Browns, the St. Louis Cardinals and the Kansas City Blues, and found that a ten per cent amusement tax on the gate receipts of Missouri games of these teams would produce about $5,000,000 revenue for the state each year. The figures were based on last year's receipts, he said.

Cigaret Tax Proposed.

A cigaret and a cigar tax was proposed in the last legislature as a means of producing revenue, but failed of adoption. Other states have such a tax and derive several millions of dollars annually from it. It was estimated during the last Missouri legislature that a tax of three cents on a package of 20 cigarets would produce several million dollars additional revenue for Missouri each year.

"There are a great many substantial persons who do not pay any other taxes to the state who under an amusement and luxury tax plan would aid in supporting the state government," Governor Baker said. He added that he did not believe the people would strenuously object to such a tax.

One-third of all state revenue collected goes to the public schools in the annual apportionment. Under the Baker plan this would be abolished and the entire educational system would be supported solely by the school tax.

Separate School Tax.

After the school system is taken care of the cost of operating the state government is "not large," the governor pointed out. For the last 20 years, Missouri schools and higher educational institutions of the state have been receiving more than 50 per cent of the state revenue collected each biennial period, he said.

Governor Baker pointed out that should the contemplated plan be adopted by the voters it would be possible to completely revise the state tax system in the 1927 legislature, reducing the direct property tax, the state income tax, corporation franchise tax, etc.

The chief executive said he was going to continue studying and working on the plan and would announce it "in plenty of time for submission to the voters at the November, 1926 election."

"Whatever is advised will be carefully considered and will be put forth on a strictly sound basis," the governor declared.

PROFIT $140 ON FERTILIZERS

bushels per acre, giving an increase of 75.7 bushels per acre, due to the use of northern grown seed and acid phosphate.

With acid phosphate used at a rate of 600 pounds per acre, making the cost of application around $7.50 an acre for the fertilizer, Mr. Belt realized a big profit for his experimenting with northern grown seed and the acid phosphate. It was equivalent to buying fifty-nine bushels of potatoes for $7.50, or a profit of $140.40 on an investment of $7.50 an acre. The yields of these fields accurately checked by weighing the potatoes.
